6. On 13 May 1946, four Russian generals called on the District National Committee with a group of thirty people. Supposedly, they negotiated for the transfer of Vejprty to the Russian zone of Germany (because of the Vejprty mines). The textile factories located in Vejprty would be moved first to Czechoslovakia. As compensation for the loss of Vejprty, Czechoslovakia would receive the Kladsko (Glatz) district.
